BOYS OF Y. M. C. A. HAVE MANY CLUBS; FIFTEEN ARE ACTIVE

In Past Few Months Many New Clubs for Everyone Have Been Formed —Boys Study New Inventions.

Since the organization of the boys department of the Young Men's Christian Association under the direction of H. J. Center, secretary of the work, and C. R. Beattie, secretary of the association, fourteen or fifteen different clubs for boys have come into existence. There has been a great interest shown by all the boys, and the parents, too, who have co-operated with the officers of the association.

Among the first of the societies organized were the seven bible clubs. The work in these organizations has progressed wonderfully and every club has a large attendance. Special courses of study are followed out in each division. Four of these study classes are for the graded school boys. Their groups are organized in Indian tribes and each club has an Indian name. Regular meetings are held every week, and at the end of the month a Pow-Wow or combined gathering of the four groups is held.

Boys going to the high school are divided into two groups for their bible clubs. They meet every week, first at a supper and then they adjourn to different rooms where their classes are held. A Bible club for the employed boys of the association is under organization and a large number of fellows are expected to join.

Three cabinets have been organized as follows: The high school cabinet, Employed Boys' cabinet and the Graded School cabinet. These organizations are made up of groups of fellows who all work for the interest of the club. Each cabinet has a special department to look after and reports are given at each meeting on the following divisions: religious, social, educational, physical, membership, extension and rooms and games.

The Bicycle club, which is not active at present, has a membership of about thirty fellows. As soon as the country roads are in condition for travel, activities in this club will begin and trips will be taken on every Saturday. This organization has a captain and two lieutenants. Many trips have been planned out which the club will take.

The Hi-Y club is an organization of high school fellows. They meet every week at a supper and discussions are held to promote activities in the different groups.

Fifteen boys have joined the Kamero club, which is a very live organization. At their meetings special lectures are given on the art of photography along with real demonstrations. A dark room is being fitted out and all needed equipment will be obtained in the spring. An exhibition will be given and the proceeds of the club will be on display at the Y. The exhibits will be judged and prizes awarded to the winners.

Twelve boys interested in wireless have banded together and formed a society which will enable them to become better acquainted with this great invention. Most of the members of this club are familiar with wireless and have outfits of their own at their homes. A special room will be set out at the top of the building. It is expected that when their apparatus is completed they will be able to send out messages and receive them from all over the country.

Study Aeroplanes.
One of the most recently organized groups is the Model Aero club. Ten boys are interested in this and some have already constructed little models of aeroplanes. In this society models of all the different types of planes used will be constructed and when weather permits outdoor meetings will be held. Prizes will be awarded for the different models going the greatest height, speed and distance.

Other departments of the association for older boys and men have been formed. A men's chorus has been formed. A men's tennis team has been formed. A men's public concern will be given. Billiard tournaments have been held and recently a bowling league was formed. Four teams were picked to represent the association and games have been arranged with out of town teams and local ones.

SHOPIER Y. M. C. A. GROUP HAVE PLEASANT GATHERING

Last night the Y. M. C. A. group at Shopier held a very pleasant social gathering at which about twenty-five or thirty boys were present. Many new games were played and light refreshments were served. After the games a number of matters were decided upon. On next Wednesday evening the group will go to meet and visit the association in a body. Plans were also completed for the seed corn meeting which will be held in the near future.

NO "FRILLS" Just a Statement About Food.

Sometimes a good, healthy commercial traveler suffers from poorly selected food and is lucky if he learns that Grape-Nuts food will put him right.

"A Cincinnati traveler writes: 'About a year ago my stomach got in a bad way. I had a headache most of the time and suffered miserably. For several months I ran down until I lost about 70 pounds in weight and finally had to give up a good position and go home. Any food that I might use seemed to nauseate me.'

"My wife, hardly knowing what to do, one day brought home a package of Grape-Nuts food and coaxed me to try it. I took her to no use but finally to humor her I tried a little and they just struck my taste. It was the first food that I had eaten in nearly a year that did not cause any suffering.

"Well, to make a long story short, I began to improve and stuck to Grape-Nuts. I went up from 135 pounds in December to 194 pounds the following October.

"My brain is clear, blood all right and appetite too much for any man's pocket-book. In fact, I am thoroughly made over and owe it all to Grape-Nuts. I talk so much about what Grape-Nuts will do that some of the men on the road have nicknamed me 'Grape-Nuts,' but I stand today a healthy, rosy-cheeked man—a pretty good example of what the right kind of food will do.

"You can publish this if you want to. It is a true statement without any frills."

Healthful Coffee
Depends on Each Bean

DOCTORS know the healthfulness of rich-quality coffee—especially one where the immature, bitter, unevenly-roasted beans and impurities have been taken out. It is a curious fact that the weight of a coffee bean determines its uniform heavy weight. The old and usual way is to grade coffee by "screening" it for size—but size does not determine weight of the bean.

Prosperity Coffee

undergoes the wonderful gravity-grading process in which the heaviest beans are uniformly made to fall first—by gravity. Thus, uniformity of size and weight is secured. The heaviest, richest, most healthful beans are selected to make up Hall's Prosperity Coffee. No other coffee can compare with it in information how to have coffee as good as the price.

Sold at 30c and 35c in 1-lb. sealed packs. A Savings Bank uses. Also the 25c grade, re-cut and Account by using richly blended, the world's best 25c coffee. These coffees.

WISCONSIN HEALTH WITH OTHER STATES PRECAUTIONS RANK

Badger Municipalities Pay Stricter
Attention to Health Regulations
Sage Foundation Report Shows.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 21.—"A surprising amount of neglected opportunity" is the larger cities of America in the conduct of their health departments, according to the Russell Sage Foundation, reporting this week on the results of a survey of 227 cities having more than 25,000 population throughout the country. A copy of the survey, which was conducted by Franz Schneider, Jr., has been received here.

In many respects Wisconsin's municipal health administration does not suffer by comparison with the average conditions reported for the rest of the country. A fifth of the cities surveyed by the Foundation made no inspection of school children. Nearly all such cities in Wisconsin have school nurses and health supervision of pupils in full or lesser degree. Over a third of the cities did not offer the ordinary diagnosis for the commoner communicable diseases. The same ratio is true regarding the cities in Wisconsin covered by the investigation. Milwaukee, Kenosha and La Crosse, through full-time health officers, offer this advantage, and Superior, Beloit, Oshkosh and Ashland have limited facilities for laboratory diagnosis. Madison uses the state laboratory.

Over a fourth of all the cities studied made no efforts to educate in health matters. A reading of most Wisconsin newspapers, however, convinces that local health departments are constantly employing the press to convey health messages for the benefit of the community they serve. Milwaukee issues a monthly health bulletin, street car advertising, bulletin boards, special press notices and public lectures. Nineteen-twentieths of the cities surveyed had no concern with the hygiene of industry. Through the Wisconsin industrial commission this information is being brought to the knowledge of all Wisconsin cities in many ways.

Over six-sevenths of the cities had no program against the venereal diseases. This lack is also apparent in the same measure here in Wisconsin.

so far as municipal action is concerned. Over a half of the 227 cities had no proper organization to combat infant mortality.

It is safe to say that all cities of size in this state have in late years adopted strict regulation of milk supply and milk inspection largely for the welfare of babies, and many cities have infant welfare movements conducted by private organizations, and maintain nurses. Privately more often than public initiative is back of Wisconsin's program for infant welfare. The state federation of women's clubs is at the fore in this work at the present time.

Of all the cities studied, less than a quarter had a coherent program against tuberculosis. In this field the larger cities of Wisconsin have done much. Co-operating with the counties, they have established sanatoria for their tuberculosis sufferers, with free sanatorium facilities for those who need them; have provided for compulsory reporting of cases; for investigation and visitation of these by nurses or medical inspectors, and for disinfection after the termination or removal of a case. Ninety-seven percent of the cities over 300,000 population in the United States had comprehensive anti-tuberculosis program, only 12 per cent of the cities between 25,000 and 50,000 enter this class. Similarly, only 11 per cent of the larger cities fail to investigate the reported cases, as compared with 77 per cent for the smaller cities. Finally, none of the larger cities ignores the problem entirely, as compared with nearly a fifth of the smaller cities, which made no effort whatever.

The Russell Sage Foundation agrees with health authorities generally over the inadequate appropriations for public health work, and recommends a kind of minimum wage—a minimum yearly per capita figure for a modern department. Fifty cents per capita is suggested as reasonable, and it is added that the time is not far distant when cities will allow their health departments a dollar a head. According to a recent census report, Ashland, Green Bay, La Crosse, Madison, Milwaukee, Racine and Superior exceed 50 cents per capita in health appropriations, Milwaukee paying as much as $2.99 per head. Several other cities approach the fifty cents proposed minimum. In the cities covered by the survey, it was found that the average expenditure per capita for health service was only 22 cents.

ITALIAN WOMEN SAVE MONEY AS HUSBANDS FIGHT AND NOT DRINK

"POLYMURIEL" GOWN FOR UNIVERSAL WEAR ON VIEW AT LAST

Three views of the "polymuriel" gown.

This is the "polymuriel," the convertible gown suitable for all occasions. has boomed almost every industry in the world, has put the Italian pawnshop not on the boom but on the

bum. The Italian women say this has happened because their soldier husbands are not at home to spend their money for drink and the wives can use the government pay to take care of the family instead of pawning everything in sight. Hard times for the people are supposed to make good times for the pawnbroker, but ever other trials and miseries the war is inflicting upon Italian wives, mothers and sweethearts. It has lessened rather than increased the financial worries. Pawnbrokers in Rome alone report a slump of hundreds of thousands of dollars in business. Most of these are government controlled pawnshops and before the war their portals were among the most frequented in all Italy. The government allowance to wives and families amounts to only a few cents a day, but the Italian women have learned frugality in a hard school and they know their lesson well. Not only are most of them taking care of their families, but many of them are scratching and saving enough gold to redeem some of the pledged household articles. "Oh, because I can manage when everything doesn't go for wine," said the wife of a workman. "A life a day from the government and the fifty centimes a day I make from sewing is a life and a half more than I had when my man was home. Bread and soup and a little cheese—what more does one want? My children and I manage very well."

Minneapolis Investigators Find That Average "Hired-Girl" Does Not Care For Technical Training.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 21.—The average "hired girl" does not care for technical training in household arts, and the average housewife employer could not afford to pay the higher wages due skilled workers, according to a report made here today in the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education by Bees M. Rowe of the Agricultural Extension Division of the University of Minnesota. The report was one of the results of the "Minneapolis Survey," which subject engaged the exclusive attention of the convention this morning.

The report on houseworkers said the investigation was conducted by undergraduates of the University belonging to the Phi Upsilon Omicron sorority, a professional home economics society. Three types of home were visited, those where the work was done by paid employees, those where members of the family performed these tasks but

USEFULNESS.

Nothing in this world is so good as usefulness. It binds your fellow creatures to you and you to them; it improves your own character and gives you a real importance in society beyond what any artificial station can bestow.

in surroundings of comfort and even luxury, and those where the house-mother struggled with problems of bare existence. Each type was examined in an effort to determine whether short courses in domestic science would be welcome.

After disposing of the "hired girl" question the report said of the second type of home that "most home workers who are performing their own daily tasks have gained whatever technical knowledge they possess from their own experiences or from the experiences of their mothers and their friends." It was said that "while fifty-one such housekeepers expressed a desire for a practical and experienced teacher, only eleven spoke of the necessity of technical training." The investigators thought this "emphasized that the woman with training but lacking an actual experience in housework found it difficult to gain the confidence of the practicing housekeeper."

The student investigators encountered difficulty in obtaining information from poverty-stricken homes. Of the poorest section of Minneapolis, the report said "it would be hopeless to attempt courses such as might be given in other parts of the city." It was pointed out that the mothers in many cases "do day work and have neither time nor strength to take training courses," although some expressed a desire that these be given for their children. Groups for household training already organized by social settlements were held out as providing a wedge into this section of the general problem.

In its general conclusion, the report stated, in part: "Only one out of every five home workers have had training in any of the household arts except what they got 'on the job,' a condition which would not be tolerated in any other profession with an equal amount of skill and technical requirements. The great average American home makes the largest demand for training; the type of home in which the work is done by the homemaker herself."

DEMOCRATIC EXTRAVAGANCE.

When democratic hard times hit the country, after the passage of the Underwood tariff law, laboring men and others whose incomes were curtailed were compelled to economize. Not so the democratic congress, which made appropriations upon a scale of extravagance never before equaled. Within the last year "war brides" have lived up some communities and in some localities times are better. Not so in the federal treasury, which now has fifty millions of deficit and which will have more than twice as much at the end of the fiscal year. Yet the democrats in congress show no signs of trying to fit their expenditures to the income.

The number and amount of appropriations are little short of appalling, considering the condition of the treasury—and the significant fact is that most of the raids on the public funds which democratic congressmen contemplate are wholly to be classified as "pork."

Your correspondent has just examined the file of printed bills introduced by democrats in congress on the first day of the present session, and calling for money from the treasury for private or selfish or political reasons. The documents are a vivid commentary upon the ingenuity of democratic statesmen in devising schemes to get public funds for their own political benefit and for the benefit of their constituents.

These bills also produce additional evidence, if any were needed, that the South is in the saddle and that the great bulk of federal "pork" money is designed to be distributed in the southern states. For instance, a representative from Arkansas proposes that the federal government shall pay each confederate soldier and each widow of such $200 a month during the remainder of his life, and asks the modest sum of $100,000,000 for this purpose. A member from Louisiana demands that the government establish homes for disabled confederate soldiers, their wives and widows, and wants $750,000 appropriated. Three members—hailing from Mississippi, Oklahoma and Arkansas, respectively—want the cotton tax refunded to the southern planters who paid it in civil war times. Two of these bills demand $68,000,000 each for this purpose, while the third asks for "such sums as may be necessary."

Senator Fletcher of Florida wants $4,000,000 to combat a disease which affects the orange trees of his state, while Congressman Henson of Mississippi wants $2,000,000 for the same purpose. For fish-hatcheries, monuments to dead democratic leaders, extensions to public parks, public buildings, government workshops and other purposes equally frivolous and needless but all calling for federal money to be spent in the South, various southern democrats are clamoring for a total sum of nearly $10,000,000. Senator Tillman of South Carolina wants $11,000,000 for a government armor plant. This makes nearly $200,000,000 which southern democrats asked from the treasury on the first day of the session.

CITY POLITICS.

City politics are warming up. Whether it was the cold wave or the general condition of affairs that roused the political bee out of his hibernating quarters is not certain, but one thing is sure, the bee is buzzing around many a "dome" in a manner that is bewildering. Really it is too early to make any choice on the selection of a commissioner for the one whose term expires, but there are so many candidates being talked of, so many candidates informally announcing themselves, that it promises to be a grand old race before the final time for selection really comes. There are any number of men who feel they are duly qualified and whose friends feel the same way, for the position, but they must wait for the time that there is many a split between the cup and lip. There will be no lack of candidates for commissioner is now certain. The one great trouble will be to pick out the best one. The commission form of government makes the city government non-partisan and is supposed to mean the best man will win the nomination and election. Often this does not follow but it is safe to say that it will this year with the diversity of candidates already in the field and seeking approval of the voters. The position is not an easy one. It is not one that can be filled by any "pensioner," but must be an alive, up-to-date business man. True, the salary offered is not large enough to induce men of a stripe that we could wish as commissioners, owing to the restrictions as to other business connections, in office, but it is large enough to command the best brains available. Personalities should not offer themselves in this campaign and the best man possible should be nominated so that the best man that is available can be elected. Later it is possible the Gazette will have something more to say as to the office and its requirements, but at present it simply suggests that no voters pledge themselves unrestrictedly.

ITALY AND GREECE.

"Although there is little value in attempting any consideration of the external policies of any of the countries in Europe at the present moment, still it is highly necessary for the student of politics to keep in view the traditional policies of the various nations and the extent to which they are every day being modified by events," says an eastern exchange. Most traditional policies have largely been rendered obsolete, and factors upon which the student could depend with almost mathematical certainty some eighteen months ago, are now of little value, and even tend to confuse the issue. Appearances everywhere, indeed, indicate that Europe will emerge from the war with but a very shattered remnant of policy of any kind, and that there will be a tremendous reconstruction de novo for all practical purposes.

"Nowhere is this more true than as between Italy and Greece. The policy of Greece is still, from an international point of view, sound. Traditionally she has ambitions in Albania which are not welcomed in Rome. She has also ambitions in the Aegean which Rome has done its utmost, during the last twelve months, to render impossible of accomplishment. That these disagreements are by no means at an end has been made clear recently by certain statements in the Italian press. It has been openly pointed out, with what authority it is impossible to say, that in the early days of the war Greece was frankly offered by the entente powers, not only the Albanian Epirus but also that part of Albania which extends around Berat and in a more northerly direction. Athens at the time would not enter into any such negotiations, as she did not want to come into conflict with Austria, which was known to be bitterly opposed to any such aggrandizement of Greek territory. Such a move would also undoubtedly have been viewed with the strongest possible opposition in Rome. The concern now expressed in the Italian press is that the altered position as regards Austria may induce Greece to reconsider these offers and it is urged that Italy should be on her guard. When it is remembered that the Italian occupation of the Dodekanesos, the final regularization of which was undoubtedly one of the reasons for Italy's entrance on the struggle, has finally put an end to Greek hopes in that direction, it will be recognized how chafing are the apparent intentions of the two countries.

"The dream of the Greek nation has always been to complete the circle of the Aegean. Monsieur Venizelos was particularly awake to this idea; he would, it is true, have consented to come little widening of the break in that circle at Kavala, but it was only to secure a greater arc along the coast of Asia Minor, including the islands. How far Italy's known antagonism to the accomplishment of Greece of either of the purposes mentioned has affected Greek policy, it is impossible to say; but it is an important factor, and the desirability of keeping such questions steadily in view cannot be doubted."

MIDWINTER TRADE.

As the newspaper man looks over his exchanges at this time of year, the strongest impression he gets is that of the enormous amount of advertising of midwinter sales. From the big department store of some great city, down to the little dry goods shop at some country cross roads, "they're all doing it." It has become apparent to progressive merchants, that it is cheaper to sell winter goods at a reduction now, than to carry them over until another year, paying interest on money invested, insurance, taking chances of style changes or deterioration of the stock. It has therefore become one of the fixed laws of trade, that the public can get concessions in prices by buying at this time. But it is of very little use for a merchant to mark his prices down, unless he tells the public about it. An unadvertised mark-down sale fails flat. If a merchant does not make some announcement of the concessions he is willing to make, the public would conclude that he was not making any, and that he preferred to carry his stock over to another season. There is always a special class of trade waiting to take advantage of bargains. It consists of shrewd, economical people, who would rather wait for a good bargain than longer in order to get the low prices of January and February. Whenever they pick up a newspaper in midwinter, they turn first to see what merchants have "come across" with bargains. The best offer gets their patronage, and they head direct for the store that makes it.

HERE'S TO THE DOERS!

If the New Year's slate has room, add a postscript. It isn't too late to resolve on a constructive policy for the next twelve months. Not more talk is needed, but more of putting into concrete form some of those ideas which fall so smoothly from our lips. The reason the grafting of the demagogue, get such a grip is because the people are men of action. The people who have the thoughts fall because they see the flaws but lack the initiative. Let's get busy if we see better ways of doing things and try them out. Don't stand round and look superior to the fellow who is making mistakes. Shoulder some part of the load yourself. Our town needs the thoughts of its best citizens translated into civic activity. What you accomplish may fall short of your ideal, but better be a producer, than a dreamer and fault-finder.

The soldiers are fighting in the snow in Europe and wearing white to protect themselves from observation. In this country it has never been discovered that the wearing of white stockings and shoes was due to any purpose of concealment.

Congress is having a big old debate on preparedness, but the congressmen won't know what their sacred and unalterable convictions are until they hear from their constituents.

Some of our exchanges are remarking that the presidential boom will be sunk by enemy submarines. It seems more likely though that they will sink in their own weight.

Now that congress is investigating everything, the American people are going to have the satisfaction of learning a lot of things that they knew before.

The kids may sometimes descend to speak correctly in the classroom, but at home or on the playground good grammar is very bad form.

The Daily Novelette

The Philosopher. Some shine at table repartee, I am content to silent be, I'd rather eat. (Synopsis of preceding chapters: Nothing stands between Geoffrey and the freedom of Wessex except fourteen kinsmen, all of higher rank. So Geoffrey, a man who has never allowed his kind heart to stand in the way of his ambition, gives himself three years to end the earthly careers of the intervening fourteen, after which he intends to kill the present Earl of Wessex and then take the title himself. Six of the fourteen, famous sportsmen, he lures into the African jungles on the pretense that a champion cannibal tennis match is to be played there, and then, after he has heard of again. He challenges four to duels and kills them without danger to himself, as their revolvers are filled with blank cartridges. Of the remaining four, he kills one with a light by hitting him at a court function, but his wife is on crooked, one with jealousy by running off with his wife, and the other two with kindness by sending them rich jewelry that she die of indigestion. To hours after he has poisoned the coffee of the present earl, he receives a telegram.) Chapter III. It was from his lawyers. It said: "Earl of Wessex discovered to be a hoax. Never was such a title. The crown will seize estates. Stoken & Picken." "Oh, well," yawned Geoffrey Moots, "I've had an exciting three years." (The end.)

On the Spur of the Moment ROY K. MOULTON

Some Difference. When Mrs. Snow drops on full sail to voyage down the street, With envy women all turn pale; her style they cannot beat. Her chin is lifted in the air, she wears a haughty look. Like that the pictured women wear who grace a fashion book.

If folks could see her in the morn, she'd draw far different stares. An old kimono, stained and torn, is all the gown she wears. Her waist is thick, her hair is thin and snarled in disarray. She's quite a different woman in her morning negligee!

The Hickeyville Clarion. Of course, there are arguments for and agin' the celluloid collar, but the fact remains that the fellers that wear 'em seldom get higher than congressmen. Ex Timmins has got a fine job on a newspaper and ain't wrote home for money during the past month more than three times. His father feels he never did a good thing and said nothing but they did a lot of deep thinkin' as Anse and his wife are both pillows of the Harshell church.

Impossibilities. Once upon a time a person made a famous remark that nothing is impossible. Here are some things that person never tried to do. He never tried to convince his wife that she didn't need a new hat. He never tried to cut a pane of glass with a 10-cent glass cutter. He never tried to unscrew the top from a glass fruit jar with his bare hands. He never tried to look dignified in a celluloid collar. He never tried to hook his wife's dress up the back in a hurry. He never tried to make a league baseball play in a town where the grass grows in the middle of the street.

Both Answers Are Correct. The teacher was questioning her class about graduation in the scale of existence and asked, "What comes next, to man?" Little Tommy raised his hand anxiously. "Well, Tommy?" interrogated the teacher. "What is that comes next to man?" Tommy smarting under a sense of a previous defeat, responded: "His undershirt, ma'am."

A Little Girl When Asked by her teacher to distinguish between the human and the animal families, replied: "A brute is an imperfect beast; man is a perfect beast."

Anent the Glue Business. Otis Klett and Stewart are said to be contemplating starting a glue factory at Mr. Klett's farm. They will get their supplies from the waste products in markets and will pick up dead animals where possible. There is said to be a good demand for glue in the cities, where restaurants use it to fasten on the lids of apple pies.—Dowagiac News.

DIRECTED SHELL FIRE WHEN BUT A FEW YARDS FROM ENEMY

Paris, Jan. 21.—A French artillery captain tells the following story of operations in Alsace: "We had decided to get rid of a machine gun shelter that had been in our way for a long time. The lines were so close that the colonel ordered all the front trenches to be evacuated except for my lieutenant who had volunteered to stay there and direct the fire. "My battery opened fire and after a few rounds my lieutenant telephoned that we were doing well, but that if we shortened our range twenty yards, it would be still better. As the range was over 3,000 yards, I asked him if he was sure I could shorten it without danger to him. He answered that it was quite safe. After a number of rounds he telephoned me again to shorten the range, this time by ten yards. Then," he said, "your shells will be falling right on the front line of German trenches. I told him that I would do it, but that he would, of course, retire to the second lines. I gave him time to get away, and then began again. Ten minutes later to my amazement, the telephone bell rang again. My lieutenant had stayed at his post although a perfect hail of trench shells was bursting on the German trenches just seven yards away from him. We measured the distance. It says something for our gunners that only one shell had burst in the French trench.

PEOPLE SWARM RINK VIEWING PRIZE BIRDS

NEARLY TWO THOUSAND PERSONS ATTEND GIGANTIC SHOWING OF POULTRY.

SHOW ENDS TOMORROW

Six of the Best Prize Chickens Are Awarded to Visitors Every Day.

Between fifteen hundred and two thousand people have visited the annual showing of poultry at the Auditorium building on River street, given by the Southern Wisconsin Poultry association. Never in the history of the association have they had such a great success in their showing and the attendance record will beat that of all previous years. This afternoon many people fairly swarmed around the different displays and tomorrow it is expected by the directors of the association that one thousand more persons will visit this gigantic display of prize birds. Many out-of-town people came this morning from the cities surrounding Janesville.

The big free contest which is conducted every afternoon and evening is a feature of the show and many people await the drawing of the numbers to see if they are the lucky ones to be awarded the prize poultry. One there he will go to the Appleton show. The association was very pleased with their judging and no partiality was shown in picking out the different winners.

At the close of this show many of the exhibitors will send their birds to other shows in the state. The Milwaukee poultry exhibition opens next week and most of the prize winners of this show will be sent to that city. L. L. Hilton of this city, who has a prize Silver Spangled Hamburg cockerel, stated that he may send it to the New York show. It secured the highest score in the show and Judge Lauby stated that it would run close to any bird in the country.

The Wisconsin Rhode Island Red club held their annual meeting at the show this afternoon. Many of the local chicken fanciers are members of this organization. Officers were elected for the coming year and plans made for the next annual meet.

WEDDED SIXTY-TWO YEARS AGO TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. George Crossman, Early Settlers of Rock County, Observe Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. George Crossman, who reside at 110 Terrace street, observed today the sixty-second anniversary of their marriage. Mrs. Crossman, who has reached the age of eighty-one on Christmas day, is slowly recovering from a serious illness which has kept her confined to her bed for a period of ten weeks. She is improving steadily, however, and expects to be about in a short time. Mr. Crossman is now eighty-four years of age.

OAK HILL OFFICERS IN ANNUAL SESSION

Re-elect W. T. Sherer President.—William McVicar Trustee, to Fill C. S. Cleland Vacancy.

The annual meeting of the Oak Hill Cemetery association, was held Wednesday evening at the city hall. Officers and three directors were elected with a fourth to fill the unexpired term of two years of the late Charles S. Cleland. William McVicar assumes the vacancy left through Mr. Cleland's death. The other directors elected were: Hon. James S. Fathers, Herman Lichtfus and James Piffed.

W. T. Sherer was re-elected to the office of president. V. C. Cate is secretary, and C. S. Burman, treasurer. Among matters discussed and decided upon was a program of improvements to be made during the course of 1916. The idea of further landscaping the nearby vicinity of the beautiful new entrance gate has been abandoned. It was felt that the presence of more shrubbery about the gate would detract from the beauty of the structure.

However, to offset this, it was decided to paint the section house and barn and the chapel white to further harmonize the view; the bright as buildings aside the vista to the chapel at the entrance of the cemetery proper, all showing prominently on the green grass and between the trees. A new fence from the south and the Washington street gate to the top of the chapel hill is to be erected. Another fence from the north end of the gate to the chapel of Mt. Olivet cemetery, the Catholic burying ground, is also to be made.

GERMANS ARE HOLDING NEW COIN FROM
CIRCULATION SAYS PRESS.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Berlin, Jan. 21.—Though several million iron coins are presently in circulation, comparatively few of them appear in circulation. This leads a number of newspapers to declare that they are being withheld as a matter of patriotism the public should wait until after the war before attempting to save the new coins, and declare that there will be ample opportunity to collect war souvenirs when normal conditions again have been established.

During approximately one month the small coin shortage was limited to the small coins, which were not as soon as the iron coins were issued, however, there arose a ten-flennig piece, which is noticeable. Thus the subway corporation has issued an appeal to the public to buy tickets by the whole sale—that is to say, five, ten or twenty at a time—in order to relieve the small change shortage.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

Clara Kimball Young, will go to Cuba as soon as she finishes the new Russian picture now being produced at Fort Lee under the direction of Edwin August. In the tropics Miss Young and her supporting company will prepare a big picture adapted from a noted French novel, the name of which is being kept a secret for the present.

MORE MASTERPIECES ON THE SCREEN SOON.

The thoroughly released Jan. 17, is a drama of high finance and of fortune retrieved in the virile atmosphere of the modern west. The cast of this stirring five-reeler are William Russell, the American star of the first magnitude. The picture is being produced under the direction of William Barlett, the American director. In it will be scenes of "cattle rustling," pursuit, and train fights, combined with the softening incident of home life and of love. One of the most spectacular of the blowing up of a powder mine, and the destruction of the mine manager's house.

RITA JOLIVET IN HISTORICAL DRAMA.

A feature of the drama "The Honor to Die," is the fact that it is an Italian drama, really made in Italy. Miss Rita Jolivet, the charming star of the legitimate stage, who has won her name in the electric light of Broadway, is the heroine of this sensational war picture.

Edith Storey, whose versatility makes her one of the most attractive and valuable film stars, is working under the direction of George D. Baker with Antonio Moreno, in scenes that require both of them to represent "tough" characters. They do a dance in a cabaret scene that is a highlight of the price of admission, and it is difficult to realize that both Edith and Tony have won numerous cups for up-to-date dancing.

FACTS REGARD PATRIOTIC SONGS OF ALL NATIONS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
New York, Jan. 21.—From data just gathered by the Metropolitan Opera company, these facts are learned about patriotic songs familiar to nearly every one:

The national song of the French, the "Marseillaise," was composed by Rouget de Lisle, a captain of engineers quartermaster of Strasbourg when the volunteers of the Bas Rhin received orders to join Luckner's army. They had no music, but at the suggestion of Diez, the mayor of Strasbourg, DeLisle composed this song on the night of April 24, 1792. It was subsequently sung in Marseilles with immense success, hence its name. The song as it is sung today is a revolutionary hymn in the world. The French government recently transferred the body of Rouget de Lisle (who suffered imprisonment for his revolutionary opinions during his lifetime) to the Palace des Invalides with great pomp and ceremony.

The music of "Deutschland uber alles" was written by Haydn in 1797. The words were written by Hoffmann von Fallersleben in 1841. At that time Germany was not united into an empire as it is today. The "Wacht am Rhein" was written by Max Schenkelschlegel, an obscure Swabian merchant, and the music was by Carl Wilhelm. The song became popular during the Franco-German war.

The national hymn of Austria was composed by Haydn and is known as the "Emperor's Hymn."

The words of the "Star-Spangled Banner" were written by Francis Scott Key, an American prisoner on a British man-of-war during the bombardment of Fort Mchenry in 1814. The melody is an old English drinking song.

The words of "Yankee Doodle" were probably written by a Dr. Shuckburgh, a surgeon in the French and Indian wars. Halliday, the antiquarian, asserts that the melody is derived from a chant used in the Italian church from the twelfth century. It is well known that the song was a vintage song in France and Spain, and a song of the reapers in Italy. It also said to be founded on a jig of 1745 known as "Kitty Fisher's Jig." The Cavaliers are said to have used it in ridicule against the Americans.

The origin of "America"—the tune of "God Save the King" in England and "Hell dir im Sieges Kranz" in Germany is in doubt, though it is often ascribed to Dr. John Bull, an Englishman. It is also ascribed to Henry Carey.

The Russian national anthem, "God Protect the Czar," is one of the most majestic of hymns. It was composed by Glinka, an officer in the Russian army, in 1832, to words by the poet Jankowsky. It is probably the inspired national song ever "written to order."

CAPTAIN ON ENGLISH SHIP SINKS SUBMARINE AND RECEIVES REWARD

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, Jan. 21.—After a shell from a submarine grazed the head of the captain of a British steamer voyaging in the Mediterranean, the captain hauled out the ship's gun and returned a shot that caused the U-boat to disappear. Then the passengers sang "Nearer My God to Thee," and a prayer was offered up in thanksgiving for their escape. A collection in gratitude for the skill shown by the captain and crew amounted to nearly $1,000.

This incident is related in a letter from the Rev. A. J. Mortimore, formerly a curate of Southport. Beyond the fact that the vessel was fired on while near Alexandria, no particulars are given as to its name or destination are given.

A word to the wise—to those who advertise. Use want ads every day; our word for it, they'll surely pay.

Clara Kimball Young, the beautiful and fascinating star of the production, "Camille," one of the most popular of the current photoplays, and according to competent critics, one of the greatest films ever produced. Miss Young has been a favorite with film fans for several years.

"Life's Whirlpool," with Holbrook Blinn, starring, ranges in scenic variety from a San Francisco dive to the heights of the Rockies and the alkaline wastes of Death Valley.

"The Song of the Wage Slave" Greeted a Delighted Audience at the Majestic.

Edmund Breese, putting all his soul and heart into his acting, was seen last night at the Majestic in "The Song of the Wage Slave." The idea of the picture, interesting in theme and beautiful in its abundance of wit and picturesque Alaskan scenery, was taken from the famous poem of the same name by Robert W. Service. The thread of the story was carefully wound around the common topic of low wages and also concerning the honor and happiness of a little Alaskan daughter. Edmund Breese played the part of the sturdy mountaineer who thought it best to sacrifice his life and honor in order to make the girl of his dreams happy.

The "Song of the Wage Slave" can be witnessed tonight at the Majestic Theatre.

Amusements

(Notices furnished by the theatres)

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"The Dutch Blockhead," one of the most popular of the utterings of the winning company because of the wealth of wit that effervescently bubbles out of the play, will be re-played here during the week's engagement of the winning variety of musical comedies, beginning Sunday, Jan. 23, at the Myers theatre. But before, some portions of it have been eliminated and new laughs and music have been injected to make it a most delightful character play. Without the name, "The Dutch Blockhead" is complete, with it it is a work of art. There are no off-color, mental or physical allusions that this production won't erase.

The winning company this season under the management of Frank Wininger, has a chorus that can sing, a chorus that can dance, and a chorus that is clad in good taste and in a lot of expensive clothing.

Jane Allen, leading woman of the company, is a handsome girl with excellent singing and speaking voice, a pleasant smile and a manner which is good breeding across the footlights.

AT THE PRINCESS.

King Baggott on Saturday in "Man or Money."

On Saturday the Princess will present King Baggott in a drama of the Northwest.

Donald Britt and Paul Ferris are college classmates. The picture opens with a lawn fete on the campus. Here Donald meets, for the first time, Aime, Paul's sister. Time falls in love with Donald, while, he too, admires her, and looks upon her as his ideal. He tells her, however, that he must establish himself, as soon as he is graduated, before he can think of marriage, and Aime is perfectly willing to wait.

Aime's father is opposed to her marriage to a man without fortune, so Donald leaves for the west to accept a position as civil engineer in charge of construction work. He promises to send for his fiancée as soon as he can provide for her.

Meanwhile a rich man meets her and she is finally persuaded to marry him. Donald comes back and the manner in which he wins Aime to himself and the sacrifice made by the husband is told in the picture.

Marrying for Money

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Father, may I clear out the store-room on the third floor and fit it up for a den where I can entertain my friends?" Dudley Townsend half in the back part of the store, near the elevated little dais that served for the private office where the bookkeeping was done. The store was empty of customers; it was early in the morning.

"I suppose so. What do you want to fit up the den for?" asked the father.

"Well, I hardly feel like asking the boys to entertain in the house. It is so blawed gorgeous they do not feel at home, and I never will have them here."

"You are some of Mrs. Townsend's callers, or disturb her nap, or something, if I have the room, I will fit it up with some of mother's dear old furniture and it will be my home, of course I will eat and sleep at the house, and—"

"Certainly, fit it up. I shall be glad to have the furniture used and used for," Jacob Townsend leaned his head on his hand and Dudley thought his father's face looked drawn and old. He wondered if it was his imagination.

"Poor father, I am afraid his new wife is already becoming a heavy burden," thought the boy.

The father thought, "Even peace-loving Dudley is homeless; has to fit up a room over the store where he can feel free to entertain his friends. My daughter must go away to school and probably remain away till she leaves home for good in one way or another." He sighed wearily behind his hand when he thought the boy had gone beyond hearing.

"I believe Tupper will help me arrange the room. She's mothered us for five years and nothing we ask of her is too much trouble." Dudley stopped whistling long enough to deliver himself of this remark, while on the way upstairs to begin clearing the room.

"Call up the speaking tube when I am needed here," he shouted to his father from the landing.

The day proved to be rainy and business did not require Dudley's presence for several hours. The delivery boy found an hour to help carry the heavy boxes to another store-room. By night the room was cleared. Dudley was right about the readiness of Mrs. Tupper to assist her favorite in settling his new quarters. The next afternoon after the dinner work was out of the way Mrs. Tupper appeared in the parlor door gloved and bonneted for the street.

"I shall be back in time to get supper," she announced cheerfully, "but you will have to wait on the door."

"Why, Mrs. Tupper, is this your afternoon out?" asked Mrs. Townsend in surprise. "I have been careless about arranging a day for you."

"Don't you bother about that; I go when I feel like it, provided the work is done. Sometimes I do not go for a month; then again I go a couple of times a week."

"Really, I prefer to have a regular time," began Mrs. Townsend in a businesslike tone. But the cheerful round face became stern and the flowers on the bonnet quivered as she said:

"You will make no such arrangement with me, Mrs. Townsend. I am not, as you may say, 'in service.' I have a home to go to, and I must have it. I will be back in time to get supper the third floor room was all cleaner ready for settling."

(To be continued.)

"I would not write you, only, so far as I know, I stand alone in my theory and would like to know, if I am wrong, wherein the wrong lies."

What do you think about it, reader friends?

Part Of The Bigger Problem.

I don't know just what I think, because it is part of a larger problem on which my mind hasn't yet crystallized. Of course, you can easily recognize the larger problem.

That boys should be permitted to go about using offensive language, unpunished, does not seem right. Education is, of course, the ultimate solution of this, as of most of the problems of crime and poverty.

But in the meantime, what?

It does seem as if there ought to be some other way to rebuke a boy besides punching him.

On the other hand, "to fight for a principle" has a ringing sound—it strikes some chord in the mind.

What do you think, reader friends? Will you solve this problem for me? I'd like to hear from any who are interested, and we'll have a symposium some day.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To Dry Sweater.—After washing a sweater, instead of hanging on the line, place it loosely in a cloth bag or pillow slip and when dry it will fit like new.

Stain Remover.—Use lemon peel, after the juice has been partly squeezed out, to rub stains from silverware; all to remove fruit stains from your fingers.

To Hasten Cooking.—Add a pinch of baking powder to meat or vegetables which you wish to hasten cooking. It is much better than soda for the purpose, as there is no danger of giving the food an alkaline taste.

Knife Sharpener.—Instead of rubbing knives over crocks, get a piece of emery cloth and tack on a piece of wood. Two or three strokes of the knife across this will put a surprising, keen edge on the tool. Dull hat pins, needles, etc., can be renewed on this handy instrument.

BLOSSOMING GREENERY FOR THE TABLE.

Into a glass bowl put some pebbles. Slip a few begonia stalks in the ordinary "wandering Jew" and stick between pebbles.

Fill bowl with tepid water and in a couple of weeks it will make a beautiful green center for the table. The blossoms will bloom continually. The youngsters will delight in watching them grow. Keep adding water when necessary.

THE TABLE.

Nut Bread for Sandwiches.—One egg beaten light, one cup sweet milk, one cup granulated sugar, one cup rolled oats, four cups flour, 2 1/2 cups baking powder. Bake forty minutes in moderate oven.

Salad Dressing.—Two tablespoons sugar, one heaping tablespoon flour, one-half teaspoon mustard, one spoon salt, two eggs, one cup of diluted vinegar, a few drops of tab pepper extract. Cook mixture in double boiler and mix with whipped cream. One part dressing to two parts cream. Lemon Pie—Make pastry and fill with lemon filling, using whipped cream on top in place of the customary meringue.

Crullers.—Two eggs, one cup sugar, 1 1/2 cups sweet milk, one-half teaspoon baking powder. Flour enough to roll out. Cut with a knife and twist. Spice if you like.

Molded Salmon.—One can salmon, one-half tablespoon flour, one teaspoon mustard, dash of cayenne, yolks of two eggs, one-half tablespoon butter, three-fourths cup of milk, one-fourth cup vinegar, three parts tablespoon of gelatin soaked in two (2) tablespoons cold water. Same as cooked salad dressing. Then add gelatin and mix with salmon. Before mixing pour hot water over salmon and drain. Put in individual molds and serve with cucumber or olive sauce.

Veal Pot Pie.—Cut about two pounds of fat veal into small pieces and put over fire in cold water. Cook about one hour, do not boil rapidly as that makes the meat tough. At the end of the hour add salt and pepper and a handful of rice. When it boils again add several potatoes and dumplings.

Nut Pudding.—One cup molasses, one cup suet (chopped), one cup sweet milk, two and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one teaspoon and one-half teaspoon salt, one pound English walnuts (chopped). Steam two and one-half hours.

Nut Loaf.—One cup brown sugar, one egg, two cups sweet milk, two cups each white and graham flour, one teaspoon salt, four teaspoons baking powder, half cup nut meats. Stir baking powder with white flour. Mix well and bake one hour.

She Didn't Mind.

"Sarah, I wish you would be more careful. I do not like to hear your mistress scolding you so often," said the master of the house to the maid.

"Oh, don't mind me, sir," replied Sarah simply; "I take no notice."

THE PASSING OF TWILIGHT SLEEP.

Now that the far-famed Dammerschlaaf, or "twilight sleep" has been introduced into the movies, we feel that we are safe in venturing to speak of it.

Twilight sleep is the strange name given to a method of producing forgetfulness and partial loss of pain sense in childbirth. The effect is produced by the injection into the skin of a mixture of morphine or a derivative thereof, and scopolamine, the latter a narcotic which makes the patient forget her experience.

Authorities differ. That is one grand thing about competent authorities. Haven't you noticed how cordially they differ about everything, even the constitution and the law? Medical authorities differ because what one patient's food happens to be another patient's poison, and the authorities will differ just as hard as they can without considering how different people are in that respect. But then, it is fortunate for the world in general that authorities do differ about everything. Wouldn't this be a

WHY FAMOUS PASTRY COOKS USE KC BAKING POWDER

The patrons of our first class hotels and restaurants are exacting—they demand the best. Women go where the pastry and cakes are noted for their excellence. Men are attracted by hot bread and biscuits—when fresh and moist and light.

The pastry cook with a reputation uses K C Baking Powder because he knows that results are certain; every time everything is as good as his best.

Then, too, with K C Baking Powder he can mix the various kinds of batter before the rush of the meal begins and bake as needed so that every order goes to the table fresh and hot, yet the last he bakes are just as good as the first.

The reasons behind these reasons is that K C is really a blend of two baking powders. One commences to give off leavening gas as soon as moistened. The other requires both moisture and heat to make it active. Dough or batter will remain in a partially leavened condition for hours, and when put in the oven, will come up as light as if mixed a moment before.

For cookies, pancakes, doughnuts and the like, which cannot all be baked at once, K C is indispensable. For all baking the double raise makes doubly certain.

Follow the example of the professional cook and your baking will be equal to his.

FASHION "KIDDING" WITH SPRING HATS

Just Because Show Windows Have Straw Hats On Exhibit, No Sign Spring Is Here.

(By Margaret Mason.)

The owner of the Fashion Shop is very low with grippies. The cashier has bronchitis. The buyer has a nip. Of plain old influenza, while the salesgirl has the pip. The model is mighty busy with a very active nose. And yet the window's full of hats. Of straw, and Springtime clothes.

New York, Jan. 21.—You stand with your feet in the slush and snow and gaze at the flowery array of straw bonnets and cotton frocks in the gaily trimmed shop windows. You can almost smell the violets and the budding leaves and between sneezes you murmur hoarsely: "Spring is almost here."

But alas! Spring is far distant and the misleading shop windows only show the spirit of preparedness on the part of the shopkeepers. It is true that you glimpse a straw hat occasionally on an early head, but one straw doesn't make a springtime any more than one swallow makes a drink. The recent motor show, too, and many spring modes. One stunning model was done as to body, in a smart serge suit of castor hue. A distinctly new top of asbestine green bamboo straw graced her head in the form of a cloche turban appealingly encircled with one apple, one lemon, one orange and a bunch of pearls.

Castor, by the way, is the color of the spring. It vies with the suits of white serge for Southern wear and tops the new spring boots in chic rivalry with white. Pink and blue in combination are the favored spring color scheme that has crept from under the surface popularity as lingerie tints, to surface wear in frocks and hats. Lovely muslins and cotton materials in one piece frocks are barred in pink or blue and sprigged in either forget-me-nots or rosebuds, distractingly. Gather ve roses while ye may and tuck 'em and ruffle 'em and smooze 'em too, and the result will be a duck of a dress, as quaint as an old-fashioned picture.

For we are still to be old-fashioned this spring to be new fashioned, and the new spring styles are as well as the cottons are quaintly colored and patterned in mid-Victorian manner. The spring hats continue to climb skyward even as their winter kin and high crowns and lofty arrangements of wings, bows and flowers distinguish them. Taffeta is a close rival of straw as a hat material and quaint little bonnet shaped or cloche hats of taffeta trimmed in old fashioned ruffles of the same. Taffeta hats faced in straw and straw hats faced in taffeta add variety; and two colored straws woven in check design in one piece colors of snug turban shapes are beginning a checked career in these bleak months of wind and snow on which not even a checked straw can put a check.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl sixteen years old and am five feet tall. I weigh 120 pounds and would like to have you tell me how to reduce.

(2) Is it proper for a girl to write to a fellow first and not know him?

(3) Would the fellow think the girl was silly or crazy about him?

(4) I got a letter from a fellow and he wanted me to go to a dance and asked me to answer him. As I could not dance and could not get the letter to him in time to go, I did not answer. Would he think I was being a friend to him?

(5) If he should ask to go with me again should I let him?

(6) Are people going to wear ruffles this summer?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen years old and in love with a young man three years my senior. He came to see me seven times and seemed to love me very much. Now he doesn't come any more. I let him kiss me and now I wonder if that is the reason and if he holds me cheap. What can I do to win him back? BLUE EYES.

Boys like girls who are hard to get. If you had not let him kiss you he would have respected you, and without doubt you would have been friends yet. There is nothing you can do now to make him like you again, and if you tried to do anything you would only cheapen yourself further in his eyes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I will be twenty-one years old next month. What is the best way to get ready for it? I was sixteen and am now earning twelve dollars a month. I am not pretty and my clothes are very plain and unattractive. I have a little sister

Certainly no woman should go through childbirth without the aid of an anesthetic. Chloroform, in our experience, has seemed absolutely satisfactory for routine use—enough to take off the "edge," yet not to produce complete surgical anesthesia or unconsciousness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Breathing Exercise.

Can you suggest anything to relieve painful functional trouble in the case of a young woman?

Answer—We have a monograph describing a simple breathing exercise which helps many such cases. You are welcome to a copy if you send stamped, addressed envelope.

Blood Pressure Too High.

Is 150 too high blood-pressure for a man of thirty-nine?

Answer—Yes, about thirty points too high.

Chickens And Health Departments.

Will you please tell me why people are allowed to keep chickens right under one's windows, near the house? I have reported it to the Health Department, but thus far my complaint seems to have received no attention.

Answer—If there is an ordinance against it, why don't you bring suit for damages? If there isn't, it doesn't interest the Health Department. You should call in person and find out what's what. But if your complaint was anonymous, as is your letter, the Health Department could scarcely be expected to give it any attention.

The flavor of Yuban distinguishes it from all other coffees

In producing Yuban, cost was not considered. The whole effort was concentrated on securing the one coffee in the world that would be the most delicious.

On securing a coffee that everyone would acknowledge to be unequalled. Yuban was chosen.

After testing every known coffee, Yuban was chosen.

It had such a sparkling color.

It had the full-of-flavor liquor which every true coffee lover seeks.

No other coffee had in so marked a degree, the aromatic fragrance which makes coffee the delight it is.

It is the magnitude of their business that enables Arbuckle Brothers to sell this coffee at the price usually paid for ordinary coffees. They are the largest coffee merchants in the world and have established foreign branches in the chief coffee producing countries.

It is owing to their advantages, that they are able to supply a coffee of this quality at this price.

CAPITAL CITY FIVE PLAY J. H. S. TONIGHT

Local High School Basketball Tossers Have Hard Game Tonight—Church Game as a Curtain Raiser.

Everything is set for one of the hardest battles that the followers of the Janesville high school basketball team will see this year, and that is the game tonight between the Maroons and local high school basketball players. Every student of the local school has pledged himself to be there tonight and root for the blue and white. Coach Keck has his men in the pink of condition and with a new system of playing he expects to win from the Capital City five.

Weirick and Richards, the two speedy forwards, will be in their positions ready to topple off a few baskets. Viny and H. Cushing will share the center place and the latter will probably be started at first. Cronin and Lee are the two strongest guards that the high school has ever had, and much is expected of them. Madison comes here without a defeat and from reports in that city they expect to go back without a defeat.

Church Game. As a curtain raiser to the big game the Baptist and St. Mary's church fives will clash in their first game tonight. These two fives stand among the strongest of the league and a hard battle is expected. The Catholic five have practically the same lineup they had last year with the exception of two or three. The Baptist five are McCarthy, Welsh, Steer, Birmingham, Kennedy, D. Cushing and Kenning.

The Baptist five is one of the league's best. They have been composed of the same men they had last year. They have Badger, Eller, Pond, Drew, Douglas, Schaller and Hynek. With this lineup they expect to win from the St. Mary's squad tonight. The church game will begin at seven-thirty and the high school game will follow. Carter of Madison will referee the high contest and probably the church game.

MAROON BOWLERS SWAMP THE CRACK EXCEPTIONALS

The Exceptional five had no chance last night in a match game with the Maroons. In all three events the Maroons took the lead and won the game by a margin of over two hundred and fifty pins.

Boatwicks Win. Boatwicks' five had little trouble in winning from the local five. Boatwicks took the high score honors in the last event with 172 pins. Lineups are as follows:

MILTON COLLEGE DEFEATS ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Milton, Jan. 21.—St. John's Military Academy basketball team was defeated last night on the local floor. The home team was at their best the first half, while the soldiers came back strong in the second half. The Milton boys displayed spurs of teamwork and a few lucky goals won the game for the locals. McElroy and West did excellent work for Milton, while Monson starred for the visitors. Milton led the score at the end of the first half 11 to 4, while the soldiers came back strong in the remainder of the contest with a score of 11 to 9 in their favor, thus the final score of 20 for Milton. Scorer: Hinkley; referee, of Madison; timekeeper, Lauphere.

Eugene Madden, a young Texas league player, secured last fall by the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been to see Honseller Reese in Youngstown about his arm. He will have a bad chance to make the regular team. It is coming up with a handicap of a bad arm the first year.

Investigating Committee Firmly But Quietly Gives Athletic Head Hint That He Is Not Wanted.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Madison, Jan. 21.—War has been started against Athletic Director George M. Ehler of the university by the regents' investigating committee in a report submitted to the board members yesterday. In two recommendations the investigators have positively asked Ehler to quit, although this request comes rather indirectly. Charges are made in the resolution that Ehler has used too many personal ideas in running the department. The direct hint is contained in the following provision:

"Provision whereby there shall be maintained as director of physical education a man who over and above any personal shortcomings shall place the interest of his ideals and policies in the department of physical education above his personal choice who in his judgment and in the judgment of the board of regents, the time has come, when in justice to himself, and to his department the situation dictates that he can better work out his policies in some department of physical education other than at Wisconsin; and provision that coaches of the several branches of intercollegiate contests shall, if the time ever comes, when any of them face the situation similar to the situation which obtained when the present football coach sent his resignation to the board of regents, act as this coach acted, demonstrating his loyalty to his alma mater, and his willingness to place its interests, true and unquestionable proof of the true sportsmanship which a coach must possess."

While the recommendations are broad in character, it is estimated by members of the committee that the charges are directed at the head of the department. The investigation was a thorough one, and the regents are pretty sure that they have probed the conditions thoroughly.

BADGER TRACK STAR LEAVES UNIVERSITY

"Phil" Stiles, Crack Broad Jumper, Will Not Be on Track Team—Loss is a Severe One.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Jan. 21.—E. G. Stiles, better known as "Phil," conference champion broad jumper last year, and all-around track star, has left the university to enter business in Des Moines, Iowa. His loss will mean a severe blow to the university track prospects this year, as coaches expected him to beat his record of last year by two feet. His present record is the conference record, the star having cleared 21 feet, one and a half inches. Coach Tom Jones claimed yesterday that if Stiles had remained in school this year, he would have made considerably over 25 feet. Stiles won honors at high jumping and in the dashes, while new as in school, his best high jump was six feet and one inch.

Was Near Record. Stiles represented Wisconsin at the Pan-American Exposition at San Francisco last summer, where he won fourth place in the broad jump event, after he had turned his ankle in practice. But for this injury, the Badger would have broken all records, for in his practice jumps, he made considerably over a foot. Arlie Mucks was the other Badger at the exposition track events.

Stiles explains why he was so successful on the track, especially in the broad jump. "In broad jumping," he says, "I believe my speed played a big part in my winning jumps. I was able to jump fairly high and combining my high jumping with my speed, I believe, was the big aid to my success." Stiles was in his third year and is a member of the Zeta Phi fraternity. His alma mater is in Chicago.

Poor Track Prospects. Track prospects at the university are very poor at the present time. With Stiles gone, and with Carmen Smith, a dash man, out of the events on account of entering Michigan, chances for victory are looked upon as slim. The freshman contest, played as a preliminary to the Purple game of Tuesday night, a large number of students watched eagerly from the sidelines. The freshmen won 13 to 7, and must now defeat the juniors to claim the class title of the university. Never before have students taken such an active interest in intercollegiate athletics, and this fact evidently faculty noticed this fact, evidently when they predicted that intercollegiate athletics would be retained at Wisconsin. The fraternities have formed a basketball league and much interest is being manifested in this race.

INTER-CLASS BASKETBALL LEAGUE AT THE UNIVERSITY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Jan. 21.—The inter-class basketball race is attracting considerable attention of the students at present. The freshmen-senior contest, played as a preliminary to the Purple game of Tuesday night, a large number of students watched eagerly from the sidelines. The freshmen won 13 to 7, and must now defeat the juniors to claim the class title of the university. Never before have students taken such an active interest in intercollegiate athletics, and this fact evidently faculty noticed this fact, evidently when they predicted that intercollegiate athletics would be retained at Wisconsin. The fraternities have formed a basketball league and much interest is being manifested in this race.

OSWEGO IS BEATEN; UP TO LAKOTAS NOW

Belvidere Turns the Trick Wednesday and Rockford Repeats Last Night—How Did They Do It?

Something's wrong, for all the "dope" that has been expressed by local basketball fans concerning the Oswego, New York team, alias the Co. E, Fond du Lac, has been smothered much to the discredit of the Lakota Cardinals of this city. First the Lakotas were beaten on their large floor by the Oswego team, by a score of 12 to 6, last Saturday.

On the team that Oswego showed here, they looked to be able to beat anything in the west. But the reverse proved true. On Thursday the easterners went against Belvidere and were trounced by the score of 36 to 26. Last night, it is reported, Oswego was beaten at Rockford by the score of 19 to 17, in the tightest game ever witnessed at Rockford.

Now the Cardinals never had a bit of trouble in walloping Belvidere twice, and people who have seen Rockford and the Lakotas play, declare that the Janesville team could beat Rockford. Belvidere was "loaded" for the Oswego team, it is true, having Fogarty, Young and Murphy, who is a former Lakota player, in the Belvidere team. They got five baskets, and scored 36 points. The game was not decided by the referee in any way, for there were only six foul goals made, four by Belvidere and two by Oswego. Then the Rockford defeat comes as a climax last night and the two teams play again tonight. The only solution is that the Oswego team are handicapped by a small floor in their eastern style of passing, and it is this, true, Manager George Caldwell is earnestly requested to move the Janesville goals down a few notches before the next game with Oswego, or the Fond du Lac, whichever you choose to call them.

Up at Fond du Lac the Oswego team got to thinking they were so good that on Tuesday they were going to play a game with the Freeport Outlaws. Manager Basloe forming the opinion that the Freeport team would not give him "imported" salaries, talent a good practice game, and he decided, however, to play Rockford three games on their home floor and the results will go a long way to determine if the easterners really beat the Lakotas or if the Lakotas beat themselves by being afraid of the eastern methods of playing.

MORRIS MILLER

This is the yarn they tell on Charles Herzog, manager of the Reds: Herzog and some friends went hunting recently. The two friends, ed up a bear and chased him in the direction of Herzog, who had gone in quest of a deer. Herzog heard the yell of his companions and turned around to find the bear charging at him. Herzog lifted his trusty gatling gun to his shoulder and was about to fire when the bear suddenly changed its course, ran to the right and dove into a clump of underbrush. "Shoot him, Charlie—shoot him; put it on him," yelled Herzog's companions. "What's the use of putting it on him," answered Herzog, dropping his gun. "He's out anyway. He ran out of the line."

Said Tinker to Evers, by chance: "Well, here we are, back in the same show again. No matter where we are chased, we always run into money. Who was it that put that curse on us, Johnny?"

The latest records of Joe Stecher, the Dodge, Neb., wrestler, show that he has engaged in no less than fifty-one contests since 1912 and that with the exception of three bouts without a fall, all have resulted in victories for him. George Turner and Granger Lewis are the only grapplers who have met the Nebraska mat star and escaped having their shoulders pinned to the mat.

Citizens of England, and Australia are becoming aroused over the actions of the prize ring celebrities who are now in this country protesting.

"What will he do with it?"

ing their loyalty for their country, but who are showing no disposition to return and enter the service. The indignation is directed especially against Freddie Welsh, Young Ahearn, Ted Lewis, Matt Wells, and Kid Thomas. Incidentally, the sale of Magee proved that Sinclair was kidding when he put a sixty-thousand-dollar price on him.

Statistical persons who compile figures on racing results declare that the Juarez ponies are running true to form. Favorites have won nearly 50 per cent. of the races, a surprising showing, as it is figured that 83 per cent. is extremely good.

Joe Stecher of Dodge, Neb., the champion wrestler, who may meet Frank Gotch, has been wrestling only three years. Although possessed of a comparatively slight frame, the strength of his hands is such that once he gets a grip on an opponent it takes tremendous power to break it. Stecher has a reach, forearm, and hands, of a giant, and the manner in which he uses them in connection with his superior hold makes him the most feared man in the mat game.

Matty McIntyre, former Tiger out-fighter, who has been manager of the Lincoln team in the Western league, has been thrown out of a job by the sale of the team to George Stone and his associates.

According to Joe Vila of the New York Evening Sun, the owners of the Yankees offered Sinclair $22,500 for Lee Magee, which proposition was turned down. Yet the deal was closed the other day, and while it may be that this was the figure which made the deal possible, it is a good guess that Magee did not bring that much money. Incidentally, the sale of Magee proved that Sinclair was kidding when he put a sixty-thousand-dollar price on him.

It is understood that Jim Callahan is trying to get some of the Cub players whom Tinker does not intend to carry. There are several of these athletes, who, in Callahan's judgment, would help the Pirates, who need considerable strengthening before they will be able to cut much of a figure in the next pennant race. Callahan is hustling to better conditions, and he is very apt to get some of the Tinker castoffs. Tinker seems to believe that a majority of the new Cubs will be made up from his White team, which won the pennant in the Federal league last season, and he may be willing to let some good Cub material slip through his fingers.

The fact that Jess Willard wants to have his meeting with Frank Moran postponed until May is not the only hitch that is apt to prevent the fight from taking place in New York. There is strong objection by the boxing commission, which insist that if the battle is held in any new club that club must have a year's lease on the building it occupies before a license will be granted for the bout. Willard has little to fear from Moran, who would need a stepladder to get anywhere near the champion. Of course, Moran has everything to gain and nothing to lose, but none of the fight experts believe he stands a chance with Willard.

MIKE GIBBONS DECLARES HE CAN BEAT MCFARLAND IF GIVEN PROPER WEIGHT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 21.—Mike Gibbons today wrote Packey McFarland at Chicago that he will bet $10,000 he can knock out Packey in ten rounds at 155 pounds.

"That bout of mine with McFarland at New York was a blight to my claims and I want to wipe it out," Mike said today. "Of course Packey didn't lick me that night. My showing, however, was not what it should have been. In that New York affair I had to get down to 147 pounds. It sapped my strength. But if Packey will fight me at 155 pounds, I can clean up the slate."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—And Still Father Doesn't Know

Resinol

burning skins

WHAT relief! The first application of Resinol Ointment usually stops all itching and burning and makes your tortured skin feel cool and comfortable at last. Won't you try the easy Resinol way to heal eczema or similar skin eruption? Doctors have prescribed it for 20 years. Sold by all druggists. Use Resinol Soap to clear a bad complexion.

Dandruff Surely Destroys The Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't. It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

"Foley's Honey and Tar Compound acts more like a food than a medicine." Mr. W. H. G. Richmond, Ingleswood, Calif., says: "I wish to recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as it has greatly benefited me for bronchial trouble and cough. It is a food in nature with a honey taste that is more like a food than a medicine." "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has a wonderfully quick way of soothing and healing the raw tickling surface of the throat and bronchial tubes. It eases the tightness over the chest, raises the phlegm easily, and helps the stationary racking cough that is so exhausting and weakening." "It is the best medicine you can buy, for coughs, colds, spasmodic croup, whooping cough, in croup and breathing trouble, colds, hoarseness, tickling throat and chest, whooping cough, etc. It contains no opiates, and is acceptable to the most sensitive stomach. The Lone Wolf

By
LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

(Copyright, by Louis Joseph Vance.)

Immediately the vehicle swerved, rounded a corner, and made back toward the Seine with a celerity which suggested that the stables lay on the Rive Gauche.

"Where?" the girl demanded as Lanyard sat back. "Where are you taking me?"

"I'm sorry," Lanyard said, with every appearance of sudden contrition; "I acted impulsively—on the assumption of your complete confidence. Which, of course, was unpardonable. But, believe me, you have only to say no, and it shall be as you wish."

"But," she persisted impatiently—"you haven't answered me: what is this Impasse Stanislus?"

"The address of an artist I know—Solon, the painter. We're going to take possession of his studio-residence in his absence. Don't worry; he won't mind. He is under heavy obligation to me—I've sold several canvases for him, and when he's away, as now, in the States, he leaves me the keys. It's a sober-minded, steady-paced neighborhood, where we can rest without risings and take our time to think things out."

"But—" the girl began in an odd tone.

"Permit me," he interposed hastily. "To urge the facts of the case upon your consideration."

"Well," she said in the same tone, as he paused.

"To begin with—I don't doubt you've good reason for running away from your father."

"A very real, a very grave reason," she affirmed quietly.

"And you'd rather not go back?"

"That is out of the question!" with restrained passion that almost won his credulity.

"But you've no friends in Paris?"

"Not one!"

"And no money. So it seems, if you're to elude your father, you must find some place to hide for a time. As for myself, I've not slept in forty-eight hours and must rest before I can do more, before I'll be able to think clearly and plan ahead. And we won't accomplish much riding round forever in this miserable ark. So I offer you the only solution I'm capable of advancing under the circumstances."

"You are quite right," the girl agreed after a moment. "Please don't think me unappreciative. Indeed, it makes me very unhappy to think I know no way to make amends for your trouble."

"There may be a way," Lanyard informed her quietly; "but we'll not discuss that until we've rested up a bit."

"I shall be only too glad," she began, but broke off and, in a silence that seemed almost apprehensive, eyed him speculatively throughout the remainder of the journey.

It wasn't a long one, and in the course of the next ten minutes they drew up at the end of a shallow pocket of a street a scant half-block in depth. Alighting, Lanyard helped the girl out, paid and dismissed the coker, and turned to an iron gate in a high stone wall crowned with spikes.

The grillework of that gate afforded glimpses of a small, dark garden and a little house of two stories. Blank walls of heeling tenebrous shouldered both house and garden on either side.

said. "That divan yonder is as easy as a couch as one could wish—and there's this door you can look at the head of the staircase; while I, of course, will be on guard below. And now, Miss Bannan—unless there's something else I can do—"

The girl answered with a wan smile and a little broken sigh. Almost involuntarily, in the heaviness of her fatigue, she had surrendered to the hospitable arms of a huge lounge chair. Her weary glance ranged the luxuriously appointed studio and returned to Lanyard's face, and while he waited he fancied he caught something moving and wistful in those eyes so deeply shadowed with distress, perplexity and fatigue.

"I'm very tired indeed," she confessed—"more than I know. But I'm sure I shall be comfortable. And I count myself very fortunate. Mr. Lanyard, you've been more kind than I deserve. Without you, I don't like to think what might have become of me."

"Please don't!" he pleaded. And suddenly disconcerted by consciousness of his duplicity, he turned to the stairs. "Good night, Miss Bannan," he murmured, and was half way down before he heard his valediction faintly echoed.

As he gained the lower floor the door was closed at the top of the stairs and its bolt shot home with a soft thud. When he turned to look the lower one he stayed his hand in transient indecision.

"Damn it!" he growled uneasily—"there can't be any harm in that girl! Impossible for eyes like hers to lie! And yet—And yet—Oh, what's the matter with me? Am I losing my grip? Why hesitate over ordinary precautions against treachery on the part of a woman who's nothing to me and of whom I know nothing that isn't conspicuously questionable? All because of a pretty face and an appealing manner?"

So he looked that door, if very gently, and having pocketed the key and made a round of doors and windows to examine their fastenings, he stumbled heavily into the bedroom of his friend the artist.

Darkness overwhelmed him then—he was stricken down by sleep as an ox falls under the ax.

CHAPTER XIV.

Awakening.
It was late afternoon when Lanyard awakened from sleep so deep and dreamless that nothing could have induced it less potent than sheer systematic exhaustion, at once nervous, muscular and mental.

A profound and stifling lethargy benumbed his senses. There was stupor in his brain and all his limbs ached dully. He opened dazed eyes upon blank darkness. In his ears sounded a vast silence.

And in that strange moment of awakening he was conscious of no individuality—it was, for the time, as if he had passed in slumber from one existence to another, sloughing in the transition all his threefold existence as Marcel Troyon, Michael Lanyard and the Lone Wolf. Had any one of these names been uttered in his hearing just then it would have meant nothing—he was merely himself, a shell of sensations inclosing dull embers of vitality.

For several minutes he lay without moving, curiously intrigued by this riddle of identity—it was but slowly that his mind, like a blind hand groping through the arras of a darkened chamber, picked up the filaments of memory.

But one by one the connections were renewed, the circuits closed. Singularly enough, in his understanding, his first thought was of a girl—still, presumably, asleep upstairs in the studio, unconsciously his prisoner and hostage.

For he was no more as he had been. Wherein the difference lay he couldn't say, but that a difference existed he was persuaded—that he had changed, that some strange reaction in the chemistry of his nature had taken place while he slept. It was as if sleep had not only repaired the ravages of fatigue upon the tissues of his brain and body, but had mended the tissues of his soul as well.

His thoughts were fluent in fresh channels, his interests no longer the interests of the Michael Lanyard he had known, no longer self-centered, the interests of the absolute ego. He was concerned less for himself, even now, when he should be most concerned about himself, than for another, for the girl Lucia Bannan, who was nothing to him, whom he had yet to know for twenty-four hours, but none the less a woman of whom he could not cease to think if he would.

It was her situation that perturbed him, her predicament from which he sought an outlet—never his own.

Yet his own was desperate enough. Baffled and uneasy, he at length bethought him of his watch. But its testimony seemed incredible—surely the hour could not be five in the afternoon! Surely he could not have slept so close upon a full round of the clock!

"Why Did You Lock Me in?"

And if it were so, what of the girl? Had she, too, so sorely needed sleep that the brief November day had dawned and waned without her knowledge?

That question was one to agitate him; he was up in an instant and groping his way through the gloom-enshrouded bedchamber and dining room to the staircase door in the reception hall. He found this fast enough, for its key was safe in his pocket, and, unlocking it quietly, he shot the beam of his lamp up that dark wall to the door at the top, which was tight shut.

For several moments he listened, but there was never a sound to indicate that he wasn't a lonely tenant of the little dwelling, then irresolutely he lifted a foot to the first step—and withdrew it. If she were still asleep, why disturb her? He had much to do in the way of thinking things out, and that was a process more easily performed in solitude.

Leaving the door ajar, he turned to one of the front windows, parted its draperies, and peered out, over the little garden and through the iron ribs of the gate, to the street, where a single gas lamp, glimmering within a dull golden halo of mist, made visible the scant length of the Impasse Stanislus, empty, rain-swept, desolate.

Rain continued to fall with no hint of stopping.

Something in the dreary emptiness of that brief vista deepened the shadow in his mood and knitted a careworn frown into his brows.

Abstractedly he sought the kitchen and, making a light, washed up at the tap, then foraged for breakfast. Persistence turned up a spirit stove, a packet of tea, a tin or two of biscuit, as many more of nooted meats—leftovers from the artist's stock, dismally scant and uninviting in array. With these he made the discovery that he was half famished, and found no reason to believe that the girl would be in any better case. An expedition to the nearest butcher was advisable; but after he had found an old raincoat of Solon's Lanyard decided against leaving the girl alone. Pending her appearance, he filled the spirit stove, put the kettle on to boil, and, lighting a cigarette, sat himself down beside the table to watch the pot and cogitate over his several problems.

In a fashion uncommonly clear-headed, even for him, he assembled all the facts bearing upon their position, his and Lucia Bannan's, and dispassionately pondered them.

But insensibly his thoughts reverted to the exotic phase of his awakening, drifting into such introspection as he seldom indulged, and led him by strange ways to a revelation altogether unexpressed and a resolve still more revolutionary.

A look of wonder flickered in his brooding eyes, and clipped between his two fingers, his cigarette grew a long ash, let it fall, and burned down to a stump so short that the coal almost scorched his flesh. He dropped it and crushed out the fire with his heel quite unwittingly.

Slowly but irresistibly his world was turning over beneath his feet.

SUFFERED FROM LAME BACK, WEAK KIDNEYS AND DIZZINESS.

Dear Editor:—
Last winter I suffered terribly from lame back, weak kidneys and dizziness, and uric acid in the blood caused rheumatic pains. I sent to Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., for his new remedy, "Anuric." As soon as the box of tablets came by mail I commenced taking them, and reaped untold good from their use.

(Signed) Mrs. Kate Thompson.
Note:—This "Anuric" is adapted especially for kidney complaints and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine and urinary troubles. The physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's great institution, in Buffalo, N. Y., have thoroughly tested this prescription and have been with good accord successful in eradicating these troubles, and in most cases absolutely curing the diseased kidneys.

Patients having once used "Anuric" at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, have repeatedly sent back for more. Such a demand has been created that Dr. Pierce has decided to put "Anuric" in the drug stores of this country, in a ready-to-use form. If not obtainable, send one dime by mail to Dr. Pierce for trial package, or 50 cents for full treatment.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood cleanser and alternative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It thus assists in making rich, red blood, which feeds the heart, nerves, brain and all organs of the body. You feel clean, strong and strenuous—instead of tired, weak, and "all-in."—Advertisement.

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat the liver with calomel, but to cleanse it with a harmless substitute. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dizziness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clean" the brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. How to Find Competent Help

You are on one side or the other in the employment proposition. You are either an employer or an employee. You are after a position, or else wish to employ somebody.

The Want Ad will bring all manner of replies and applications. Let us look over some Want Ads designed to secure help:

SAMPLE No. 1 OF A POOR WANT AD
WANTED—AN EXPERIENCED stenographer; salary $1 a week to start. Reply in handwriting to—

COMMENT No. 1
This is indefinite, except as to salary.

COMMENT No. 2
In this Want Ad, there is both business and human interest. While many girls may reply, it is apparent to the dullest mind that the advertiser will be particular.

SAMPLE No. 2 OF GOOD WANT AD
WANTED—A NURSE GIRL, to care for two children (boy and girl) aged 4 and 7 years. Good home and good pay for the right girl who can satisfy us as to character and references. Wish a girl to live with us. Address—

COMMENT No. 3
This Want Ad carries a message of importance. The book-keeper who is inefficient will be somewhat slow in replying. This is the safest way to get in touch with worthy help. It shows a reward for merit.

COMMENT No. 4
The Want Ad should never go beyond the bounds of reason, and impose impossible conditions. It should not be so worded as to indicate that its writer is a crank, and thereby frighten away applicants.

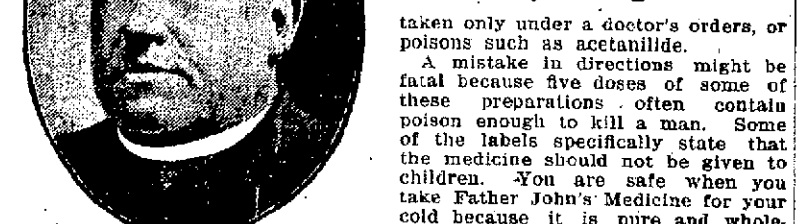

There should be a sort of understanding between applicants and employers. It is better by far to secure one application of value, than fifty of no value.

Either as an employer or employee, be sure to make your Want Ad set forth the facts—and then

JOE THE BOOK FARMER

MAKING GOOD
ON THE LAND

By
GARRARD HARRIS

COPYRIGHT, 1915,
BY HARRIS & BROTHERS.

"Well, by gum!" said Mr. Weston. "Well, by gum!" He could think of nothing else to say and remarked "Well, by gum!" again.

"There's two hundred more to ship on this place," said Joe as his wife came back to him. "We'll only owe a thousand then."

"Well, by gum!" wonderingly replied his father. Then he grabbed Joe by the arm.

"Come on and let's go tell the girls about it."

"Son, when you get to Washington and shake hands with the president," said Mrs. Weston, pausing a moment to look at him as she packed his suitcase for the trip, "you just remember there's an old countrywoman way down here in a split log house that thinks you're a sight bigger man than he is. Don't you ever forget that!"

Joe and his father were riding homeward from the railroad station. Joe's trip to Washington as the champion corn raiser of his state was over.

As they rounded the shoulder of the hill and saw the little farm house in the bright morning sunshine Joe's face wreathed in a smile.

"You know," he said earnestly, "I can understand that song 'Home, Sweet Home' a heap better now. There is no place like home." It was mighty fine and all that in Washington, but I'm sure glad to be back."

"I'm proud to hear you say that, boy!" answered his father. "I was a bit fearful you'd come back here dissatisfied, maybe after awhile go away and leave us."

"Not a bit of it," said Joe stoutly. "I've come back with the idea of sticking right here and making this the best farm in the state."

"Well, hooray for that!"

"I mean it too. I've got to have a lot more schooling, but I'm going to mix it in with my work."

"So you think you'll stick to farming, son?"

"Yes, sir."

"After seeing all the government at Washington I'd 'a' thought you'd want to be a lawyer or something."

"I did think of that before I went there, but the president took me to the window and pointed out the capitol and the treasury and postoffice buildings and some others."

"You think all this is great, don't you, Joe?" says the president.

"Of course I do," says Joe.

"Which is the greatest, these things or that which makes them possible?" he asked, looking hard at me.

"The cause of 'em, of course—that which makes 'em possible," I told him.

"Do you know what that is?" he asked me. I told him that I reckoned it was the people.

"Yes, the people, but particularly the farmer. The whole structure of government is founded on him, for people must eat before they are governed. I think a good farmer is just as valuable as a good senator," he said.

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed Mr. Weston. "I had no idea we farmers were that important."

"Me either," said Joe, "but right then I made up my mind to be a farmer, and a good one. I've got a heap more respect for farmers now."

Annie spied them down the road and came racing to meet them. Mrs. Weston waved an affectionate greeting from the front gate. Joe rushed in and gave his mother a hug.

"It sure is fine to be home again and see you all. How's everything getting along?"

"Just fine! Chickens started to laying and we've six little new pigs."

"An' a new calf named Spot!" insisted Annie.

"Come on in and tell us about your trip. Did you really see the president?" inquired Mrs. Weston.

"Yes'm, and a mighty fine man he is, too. We had a big argument."

"What? You didn't argue with the president, did you, son?" she inquired in horrified tones.

"Yes'm, I sure did. He started it," sturdily answered Joe.

"Good gracious, I hope you didn't talk sass to him! Did you, son?" anxiously asked his father, who had entered the room in time to hear part of the conversation.

"Why, of course not, but we argued just the same. And he asked me to stay to lunch with him, and I stayed."

"Hifent Scott!" whistled Mr. Weston. "How did he come to do that, Joe?" inquired his mother.

"Well," laughed Joe, "the rest of the boys—champions of eleven other states, you know—won the trip as I did. They went on with one of the heads of the department of agriculture to take a boat ride on the Potomac river. We had just been looking over the capitol. Our senator was mighty nice to me too."

"I know him," said Mr. Weston proudly.

"Yes, sir, he told me to give you his regards, and he's going to send me some flowers and bulbs from the department. Well, as I was saying, the crowd was leaving the capitol, and I said I'd rather stay and watch 'em make laws. The senator said he'd look after me and see I got back to the hotel all right. That was about half past 10 in the morning. The senate and house don't meet until noon."

"That was powerful clever of him," asserted Mr. Weston.

"So we were walking through the rotunda, right under the big dome you see in the pictures, when we met another senator. He came up and said: "Have you seen the president about that matter you promised to take up with him?" And our senator said, "No, by George, I forgot it, but I'll go right on to the White House now and see him."

"So we went down the long flight of steps you see in the pictures sometimes. Really, they're at the back of the capitol. It faces the other way. Down at the head of Pennsylvania avenue there were a lot of cabs and automobiles standing."

"Did you ride in one of them autos?" inquired Annie hopefully.

"Yes, but not right then."

"Ride or walk, Joe?" asked the senator.

"I'd rather walk," I told him.

"Me, too," says the senator. "I ate too many buckwheat cakes for breakfast and I need the exercise," and he laughed, and we struck out down the avenue."

"He stopped in a jewelry store to get his watch he left there to be fixed and then he picked out a pair of cuff buttons and pays $4 for them and hands 'em to me."

"Take those with my compliments, Joe, as a souvenir. They are historical. They are made out of steel from the battleship Maine that was blown up in Havana harbor, and which caused the war with Spain."

"Yes, sir; no doubt about it, the senator said. There was a certificate there from the navy department showing that some of the steel from the ship had been sold the jeweler, and another certificate from the manufacturer that the buttons were made of that identical steel, so I'm sure they're genuine."

"It's a present worth having!" said Mrs. Weston. "They're real handsome too."

"Then we walked on up the avenue, and the senator showed me a lot of interesting things. Then when we got to the end of the avenue we turned to the right and passed the beautiful treasury department building. It has rows of big stone pillars around it—mighty handsome. Then right on the other side of it was the White House."

CHAPTER X.

Joe Describes White House Visits.

"An' you went right in where the president lives!" inquired Anne in awed tones, as Joe started to describe his visit to the White House.

"Sure!" The senator sent his card in, and we waited in a big waiting room full of people. There were some other senators there before us, and after they had gone in our turn came. Senators are always in ahead of other folks."

"What's that for?" inquired Mr. Weston.

"I asked, and it's because they are supposed to be there on public business, and then a senator is a very high officer in Washington. And after awhile the man at the door motioned to us, and we went out of the reception room into the office of the president."

"Didn't it make you feel sort of scared?" asked Mrs. Weston apprehensively.

"Well," laughed Joe, "I'll tell the truth; I did feel kind of shaky, because I didn't know what to do, but that passed in a minute just as soon as the president spoke."

"Why, howdy, senator! Glad to see you! What can I do for you today? And is that your chap?" he says, looking at me.

"In a way he is," said the senator. "He's one of my boys from down in my state—champion corn raiser—won a trip to Washington. Mr. President, this is Joe Weston."

"Mighty glad to meet you, Joe," says the president, just as friendly as anything, shaking hands with me. "Always glad to meet anybody who has done something worth while. And how much corn did you raise?"

"I told him."

"What?" he sort of yells. "You don't mean to tell me you raised that much corn on an acre of land? And he looked at me like he thought I must be mistaken. So I pulled my certificate out of my pocket and hands it to him."

"Yes, sir, I did. Read that!" I says, and he read it through.

"Well, that is certainly fine!" he said and slapped me on the back. "It's really wonderful. How'd you do it?"

"Followed the instructions of the department of agriculture from right here in Washington—the instructions they send out to the Boys' Corn clubs."

"Do you know, senator, I have rather lost sight of that branch of the work," said the president. "I must find out some more about it. Now, let's get through with your business, and suppose you leave Joe here to take lunch with me, and we can talk? I'll see he gets back to the hotel all right. It's about 12 now."

"Why, that's agreeable if Joe wants to stay. How about it?" said the senator to me.

"Wish you would, Joe, and tell me something more about this Corn club work," said the president.

"That suits me all right, and thank you sir, for asking me," I said. So the president and the senator talked about some bill or other, and after awhile the senator told me goodbye and said he'd see me again before I left for home. Then the president pushed a button on his desk, and the doorkeeper came in.

"I will see nobody else this morning," said the president. "And send word to the housekeeper to have lunch for two up here right away."

"Well, I do know!" remarked Mr. Weston in awed tones, taking a long breath.

"He seems to have acted just like folks," commented Joe's mother.

"Yes'm, and one of the nicest gentlemen I ever saw. I forgot all about his being president or anything else except just a fine, friendly man. He made me feel right at home. So we got to talking about raising corn, and I told him how I did it."

"You said something about argufying with him?" inquired Mr. Weston anxiously.

"I'm coming to that. And when I was telling about cultivating the corn

"An' you went right in where the president lives?" inquired Anne in awed tones.

he asked me what I did with the 'suckers' thrown out at the base of the stalk.

"Did nothing with 'em," I said.

"You ought to have pulled 'em off," says the president.

"No, sir. It would have been a waste of time and work," says I.

"That's not accordin' to reason," he answered, mighty positive. "If you pulled those suckers off the strength they take goes into the main stalk and helps mature the corn."

"That's what I thought about it too," I said, "but I found out that it really didn't matter."

"You must be mistaken," said the president.
